BANDITS DRIVEN OUT AND THEIR CAMP CAPTURED.

Tulsa Jack, Zip Wyatt and Sam Green Among Those Killed-Dead Bodies of

United States marshals and deputy sheriffs armed to the teeth and not knowing fear arrived at Hennessey on a special train and attempted to capture Bill Doolin and his gang at 1:45 this morning, seventeen miles east of here. The officers rode out of Hennessey on horseback. After getting the location from one of the outlaws, they procation from one of the outlaws, they proteeded to surround the men as the sun rose over the eastern horizon. Abel Waahburn, Deputy Sheriff of Kingfisher County, made a shot at the guard who watched the came, killing him instantly. The posse then moved up closer and hegan a terrible fusilised.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 18.—At the request of the Prosecuting Attorney to-day, the trial of James Hager of Denser, and Mrs. Elien E. Adams of Chicago, was continued until next Theseday. Both were arreated yesterday on suspicion in connection with an alleged attempt to defraud through bogus mining stock. Both demanded an immediate trial, but the prosecution was not ready. Hager declares he is innocent, and Mrs. Adams insists that she can readily prove her honesty in the matter. Bail in each case was fixed at $500, which Hager furnished for himself unit was released. Mrs. Adams was remanded to jail in default of bail.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 19.—Marcus W. Bates, in a suit filed in the District Court, wants $1,225 from J. W. Warren and A. D. Haslett, two Philadelphia men, who are managers of the Philadelphia Co-operative Co., capitalized by the State at $2,000,000. According to Bates' story a certain Hec-tor Jennings of Pennsylvania represented himself to be helr to an estate in England tor Jennings of Pennsylvania represented himself to be her to an estate in England valued at $10,000,000. The estate itself was said to be in chancery. It was to bring a suit and obtain possession that a co-operative company was formed. Several wealthy Philadelphians were interested. A sufficient fund was acquired to send out agents in different parts of the country, and it is believed there is hardly a State in the United States where thousands of dollars have not been subscribed to the stock of the company. The shares of stock sold at $75, and the holder of each share was to have a proportionate share in Hector Jennings' estate when it was finally settled. One share at maturity would be worth $1,500. Among thirty or forty other Duluth people Bates bought several shares, and he further advanced the company $1,500, which would secure him over $50,000 when Jennings realized on the estate. Suit was to have been brought Jn London last November, but it has never been brought. People in $1. Paul, Minneapolis, Winona and Stillwater are said to have subscribed large sums, and in some of the cities mail cierks are said to have been used as agents of the company $1. Paul is said to hold nearly $100,000 of the slock, and the Co-operative company maintained an office there for several months. The smaller cities have also contributed to the scheme, and poor farmers have taken from their savings almost their last cent to buy a share of stock. No criminal proceedings have been instituted.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 19.—William Atkinson,'s wool grower, who dame to Colorado from New Zealand, has begun suits against Edwin G. Jelicoe, for damges aggregating nearly $675,000. Atkinson alleges that Jellicoe, who was his attorney in New Zealand, acted in collusion with his wife in enabling her to obtain a divorce and a judgment against him for $51,000. Jellicoe then followed Atkinson to Colorado and sued for over $5,000 fees.

PAYING STRAW MEN

Charges Against a Customs Collector at Port Townsend.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Jan. 19.-F several days the local press has been teem-ing with open letters addressed to the Port Collector, Saunders, charging him with seliing Custom-house appointments and having straw men on the payrolls. He ignored the charge completely. Three straw men on the payrolis.

He ignored the charge completely. Three sureties, representing four-fifths of his bond, began an investigation, and suddenly, without a notice, wired the department asking to be relieved from any further responsibility. The local Democratic press declared the Customs administration to be corrupt, and demands the strictest investigation on the part of the Treasury Department. In one instance it is alleged that Saunders appointed to office a man who was recently convicted of larceny, and, upon agreeing to return the stolen goods, the conviction was set aside. Collector Saunders was one of the White House Secretaries during Cleveland's first administration. He secured his present appointment through his acquaintance with Cleveland, and with the assistance of Hugh C. Wallace of Tacoma, the National Democratic Committeeman, who is a son-in-law of Chief Justice Fuller. Saunders said to-night: "This whole affair emanated through an unsuccessful attempt to blackmall me in giving out Federal appointments to unworthy and incompetent persons. Not one word of their charges are true. Special Treasury Agent Cullom was here this week and made an informal investigation and is satisfied of my innocence. The alleged smuggling of Chinese and opium into the United States is all bosh."

It is alleged here to-night that the department has instructed special agents and the United States District Attorney to investigate the charges of alleged irregularities, in all probability a grand-jury will be specially impaneled to inquire into the matter.

MIFFLIN, Ind., Jan. 19.-Twelve year ago Jacob Wintermeyer, a horse and cattle dealer, was found dead on the railway track about nine miles west of this place, but not dealer, was found dead on the railway track about nine miles west of this place, but not till several hours after a train had passed, so that it was difficult to say whether the train had killed him or not. Suspicion of murder was aroused by the fact that the skull wounds, as if by an ax, were plainly discernible, but no one was suspected, and the matter was almost forgotten. Mrs. Coates, a widow, died last night, and in a death-bed confession raised the curtain of mystery from the whole affair.

Mrs. Coates, a story is that she and Wintermeyer. started to a dance, and were walking along the railway when Wintermeyer made unwarrantable proposals to her, whereupon she started to return home, but he laid hold of her to detain her. In the struggle which ensued Wintermeyer tripped and fell, striking his head upon a stone. Before he could recover she seized an ax which some tie makers had left at that place and struck him with it. One moment's reflection presented the enormity of the crime to her, and she dragged the body to the track, only a few yards distant, and laid it upon the rails. From the time at which it was left there until it was found four freight trains and one passenger passed, mangling it almost beyond recognition. Mrs. Coates at the time of the unfortunate affair was aged 35 and a widow for nearly two years. She never ramarried, nor kept company nor entered society afterward, but she was never suspected of the crims which she confessed.

St. Joseph's City Attorney So Designates Their Police Force.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 19.—The letter written to Gov. Stone by City Attorney Jas, Mytton, in which he charges the Police Department with corruption, has been returned to the Board of Police Commissioners and an answer is being formulated by them to be forwarded to the Governor. Mytton intends to compel an investigation of the charges if it can be done.

The City Attorney says the Police Department pays so little attention, to the dives, gambling-houses and low resorts that the proprietors of the places openly charge that the police dare not arrest them. The letter details at considerable length the cases of the gamblers who were arrested in December and whose cases were dismissed at a secret session of the police court held at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon without his knowledge. He says of the 2,000 cases handled by him since he has been in office the police have not compiled with the law in more than twenty. The letter states that the Police Department of St. Joseph is regarded here as very deficient and that flagrant violations of the law are of such common occurrence as to be matters of history.

What He Has to Say About the Suit-Mrs. Von der Ahe Leaves Her Home and Is Keeping Her Whereabouts a Secret to Avoid Annoyance—Iroubles of the Couple—Financial Differences

The domestic and financial difficulties and differences in the family of Chris Von der Ahe, President of the St. Louis Browns, have reached a climax. His wife Emma has instituted a suit for divorce, alleging re-peated acts of adultery on his part for her cause of action. They were married on March 5, 1870. Eddie is their only living child, his younger brother having died in 1886, when only 3 years old. No co-respond-ents are named nor are any specific instances set out in the petition, but the allegations of infidelity cover the years 1893 1894 and 1895, and it is charged that Mr. Von der Ahe violated his marital vows not only in St. Louis but traveled with women of FINANCIAL TROUBLE WITH EDDIE. The divorce proceedings are regarded as the outcome of the financial trouble between Chris Von der Ahe and his son Ed, who is the outcome of the financial trouble between Chris Von der Ahe and his son Ed, who is said to have had the confidence and the support of his mother throughout. It will be remembered that Mr. Von der Ahe began an action to compel his son to restore to him the titile to the brown-stone residences on St. Louis avenue, near Grand avenue, in one of which the family made their home. The Browns' president alleged that the title was passed by him under a misapprehension and, admitting his indebtedness to his son in a large sum, prayed that he might be allowed to pay the sum—about fil.000—and that the property wrongfully withheld from him might be retained. James A. Noonan was also made a defendant.

Eddie Von der Ahe left home at the time of the filing of this action, and has been quartered at the Taylor Hotel, Grand and Easton avenues.

Mrs. Von der Ahe set about to heal the differences between her husband and her son, and, by diplomacy and appeals to each, effected a settlement on Dec. 8, when Eddie deeded the property back to his father, receiving $11,000 in settlement of his claims. There were two conditions of the settlement which, it is claimed, President Von der Ahe failed to observe. The first was his dismissal of his suit against Eddie and James A. Noonan. This is still pending. The second provision was that the son should be allowed to visit his mother at will.

CHASED EDDIE OUT.

Acording to report, an exciting and dramatic scene followed when Eddle called at the Von der Ahe home on the night of Dec. 12. When President Von der Ahe came in and found him there, report says that he not only upbraided him in profane language, but made an attempt to assault him. Mrs. Von der Ahe interfered, and it was only by the exercise of all her strength that she was enabled to restrain her enraged husband while her crippled son escaped. President Von der Ahe ordered him never to return under threat of personal chastissment. This is said to have determined Mrs. Von der Ahe, with whom Eddle has always been in high favor, to begin divorce proceedings. She will, it is understood, after the termination of her suit, reside with Ed.

Judge Sanborn Asked to Issue an Order of Foreclosure.

THE COURT HAS TAKEN THE MATTER UNDER CONSIDERATION.

ition Alleges That the Company Has Defaulted on the January Interest— Senator Thurston Asks That the Earnings Be Devoted to Paying Claims Incurred by the Present Management— An Arrangement Reached Limiting-the Claims to Those That Fall Due in

Winslew S, Pierce, counsel for the trus Winslow S, Pierce, counsel for the trus-tess of the first mortage bondholders of the Union Pacific, appeared before United States Circuit Judge Sanborn in Chambers at 10 a. m. and presented in behalf of his clients a bill of complaint, asking that an order of foreclosure be made and that receivers be appointed to take charge of the roperty in the interest of the first mortgage bondholders.

There also appeared at the same time Senator-elect John M. Thurston of Nebrasks, representing the present receivers, W. R. Kelly, Assistant General Solicitor of the Union Pacific, and Attorney Richard

Hall of Omaha.

The bill of complaint is a lengthy

The bill of complaint is a lengthy one, and goes over the entire history of the Union Pacific Railroad Co. It also involves the entire range of legal action. After going into all these details, it resounts that default has been made in the payment of the January interest; that there is no knowing under existing conditions when the January coupons can be paid, and that the trustees of the bondholders therefore ask an order of foreclosure and that receivers be appointed to take charge of the property. It is the regular formal procedure and the document is cumbersome in the extreme.

In presenting his bill Attorney Pierce stated that he supposed Judge Sanborn had read the memorial to Congress and knew of the action being taken there, but assured him in a jocular manner that it had nothing whatever to do with this bill of complaint. After some minutes of informal discussion as to the condition of the property, and as to whether in the order any change in the manner of accounting would be asked, Judge Sanborn told Mr. Pierce to prepare an order of receivership similar to that issued in the case of the Denver-Pacific, the full text of which was published some weeks ago. Mr. Pierce stated that he had already prepared such an order on that same line, and produced it. He said he had made some changes, and the matter was then taken up section by section and discussed.

KEEP THE PROPERTY INTACT.

Mr. Pierce suggested that the order be made just like the Denver-Pacific order, and that the court reserve the right to make fur.

Attorney Thurston stated on bestalf of the present receivers that all that he should claim was that all the carmings up to the present time should be left in their hands to carry out the orders already made in saying claims which had a priority in squity over the bondholders claim, which should date from to-day. This was satisactory to Mr. Pierce, who said all he saked was that the question of what were rior claims should be left to the court to ettle. Judge Sandborn did not pink this eccessary, for if everything were to be rought to him he would have a regular ustice of the Peace business. He said hat the receivers had assured him reeatedly that they had been paying all laims not contested. These claims, if delared just by the court in which they were

Mr. Pierce said that even this would not

Mr. Pierce seemd very anxious to get the order at once, but Judge Sanborn stated that he would also have to have a list of what are termed continuing orders, which provided for the continual payment of interest, and cancel them. Mr. Pierce said that he was willing to have each of these canceled, as the case came up; but to this Judge Sanborn objected.

A MATTER OF FORM.

Prior to bringing his bill of complaint, Mr. Pierce stated to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch that the matter of asking an order or foreclosure and the appointment of receivers was purely one of form. He said that it was being done on all of the Union Pacific lines when the interest defaulted, and denied that it was done for the purpose of stirring up Congress.

Foreclosure suits similar to this have seen instituted in the case of the Oregon hort Line, the Utah Southern, the Utah & Northern, and, in fact, in many places on he system where the coupons are in deault. The same proceedure will doubtless follow everywhere on the system.

After hearing all the suggestions made by the attorneys on both sides Judge Sanborn read the order, together with stenographic changes noted, and stated that he would take further time to consider the matter. He did not state when he would render a decision.

Fitzsimmons was in St. Louis this morning en route from Quincy, Ill., where he showed Friday night, to Belleville, where he is billed to-night. He called at Creedon's place and was surprised when told that Dan was'in Galveston, and expressed a hope that the man whom he had besten at New Orleans would score a victory to-night over Bernau. He also tried to find Col. Hopkins, but the latter was not in his office at the time of the call. Fitz professes to have a friendly feeling for both Creedon and Col. Hopkins.

When sinformed of the return of an indictment against him for manslaughter by the Onandaga County (N. Y.) Grand-jury, Bob expressed surprise. He said that he was a law-abiding citizen and would make no effort to avoid the authorities. "I was not responsible for poor Con's death, and am sure that I will be acquitted if the case ever goes to trial," said he, "I will return to St. Louis Sunday. I do not know whether I will be arrested on a requisition or not. It is a most unfortunate thing for me all around, but I do not take any blame on myself for the death of Riordan."

A Private Soldier of High Rank.

From the London Daily News.

Among the stories that are being told Among the stories that are being told about the late M. Victor Duruy, the eminent historian of ancient times, is one which relates to the part he played during the siege of Paris by the Germans. At that period M. Duruy had volunteered for the National Guard. One day M. Jules. Simon, the Minister of Public Instruction, was returning home to his official residence in the Rue de Grenelle, when he saw in a sentry-box a National Guard on duty who wore upon his clock the insignia of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor, a very high distinction. M. Simon, recognizing him, went up and said: "Hello, Duruy, is that you?" "Yes." was the reply, "A private soldier?" asked Simon. "Yes," said Duruy; "what of it? We can't all be Ministers." "At least," was the Minister's polite rejoinder, "we can all set a good example." M. Duruy at that time was already over 60 years of age.

the hotel she was seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter, to whom she talked freely regarding the recent suit and seemed to feel a relief in unburdening her feelings.

"To say that I was surprised at the verdict," she said, "would be a mild way of expessing my feelings on being notified of the resuit. I was perfectly astounded. All through the trial, and afterwards while waiting for the decision to be handed down, I felt sure that if any decreee was granted at all it would be in my favor. I was a little afraid, however, that both suits would be dismissed. The news that the case had been decided against me came like a thunder-clap and completely prostrated me for several days. While I have the greatest respect for Judge Valliant and think he was conscientious in his decision, I cannot help but feel that he has done me a great injustice.

"I attribute the cause of my defeat greatly to carelessness on my own part, and also to the disadvantage I was placed under in not being apprised of the day set for the trial until four days before it came off. Mr. Opel had secured the depositions of all his witnesses beforehand, while I had taken no steps in the matter. I knew that Mr. Opel would stop at nothing to bring about a verdict to his liking, and that he had a great advantage over me here in St. Louis, being so well known, etc. Then, he has plenty of money and several of his main witnesses were bought. At the same time, knowing all this, and feeling secure in the knowledge of my own innocence of the horrible charges he brought against me, I took a sort of pride in fighting him on his own ground, feeling sure that I would win and that my character would be vindedicated."

"When Mr Opel first began to east slurs and insinuations against my character, I

"When Mr Opel first began to east slurs and instructions against my character, I totally disregarded them as being beneath the notice of any true woman. I see now that I was too careless, and that I should then have taken steps to prove my innocence. Mr. Opel seemed to take a fendish delight in trding everyone he knew false-hoods about me. He has always been a man of hobbies and manias and I consider him a monomaniac on the subject of jeal-expects that they will come to see her during her stay in the city.

In speaking about her children Mrs. Opel said that they were now placed in a very unpleasant position.

"Mr. Opel has forbidden them ever holding any intercourse with me, but I am sure I possess their love. He never paid much attention to them, seeming to think all that was required of him was to furnish the means to supply household wants, and that it was the mother's place to rear and love the children. When our separation occurred he brought great influence to bear to turn the children against me. I have heard him threaten to turn them out of the house and cut them off entirely if they even so much as dared to express a word of love or sympathy for me."

Mrs. Opel said that she had formed no plans for the future, but would live quietly at her mother's in Chicago and await further developments.

When asked if she would still continue to bear Mr. Opel's name, she replied; "Yes, I suppose so; I am not at all proud of it, but will continue to bear it on account of my children."

On being asked if she had any knowledge of Mr. Brown's present whereabouts she replied that she did not.

Sandling, who bravely risked his own lifewith ninety-nine chances in a hundred to lose it.

The house in which old Peter McLean lived is a two-story wooden building, facing the west and used as a boarding-house. The old man occupied the two rooms of the southwest end on the second floor, one of the windows of his bedroom opening on a balcony, and the foot of his bed showed against the window. The only entrance is from the sitting-room, the door of which opens in a hall at the head of the stairway. McLean had spent nearly all the days of the last three months lying on his bed, reading and smoking. He, formerly was a molder and in charge of the Western Union foundry, but several weeks ago an attack of locomotor ataxia made impossible the use of his segs and hands.

In the same house where lived Peter McLean boards a young man by the name of Robert Sandling, whose room is just beneath the one occupied by the old man. Yesterday afternoon at about 5:30 young Sandling, who had returned from his daily work, heard a queer noise above his head and also smelt something burning. The odor seemed to come from the second floor. He ran upstairs and met on the stairway young B. Hoorstman, also boarding in the same house. There could be no doubt as to the smell of something burning. The hall was intensely hot and smoke was seen coming out of the closed door of the rooms where old Mr. McLean spent all his time.

Young Sandling burst open the door of the sitting room. A sheet of fame poured into his face, blistering it and singing his hair. He ran to the balcony, followed by Hoortsman, broke in the window and for a second stood paralyzed by the sight before him. Lying on the bed was the old man. McLean, reasted from the feet to the waist, his syst wide open, unable to move, unable to speak. All the furniture in the room, bed, chairs and carpets, were in fames.

Sandling opened the window and cried to Hoortsman and the three or four people on the balcony was spechless with fright. In a few seconds Sand ling respects with fright. I

Mr. Willman and Mr. Willson, a friend of his, went up the lake to troil for muscallong. The day was fine, the waves were duction and the left and proved out on the lake. They had fished for some time and were some distance apart troiling over the weeds around a small island to the motion for a rehearing of her case. In the motion for a rehearing of her case. The fish came along all right till he saw the boat, which seemed to excite him somewhat, and he suddenly made up his mind that he would go the other way, which he did till he came to the end of the line, when he did not stop but towed the boat around for a while. He soon tired of this, and Mr. Willman pulled him up again and succeeded in hauling him into the boat. Then a flerce struggle took place. Some of the time Mr. Willman was on top, sometimes the fish. Both got excited and captised the boat. Here the advantage lay with the fish. He towed Willman away from the boar and proceeded to do him up with the line. He swam around and around his body, passed between his legs, till he had him laced up like a shoe.

In the meantime Willman had taken a death grip on one of his oars that was floating by. Wilson saw the struggle that was going on and started to the rescue. When he arrived on the scene Willman was out of sight. He saw the handle of an oar come up which he graped and pulled up, and found Willman holding to the other and for life. His eyes were set, and as he pulled him into the boat his head fell back, and to all appearances life was extinct. Wilson went to work to bring him to, which he succeeded in doing in a short time. He unwound the line from Willman's body and legs and then turned his attention to the fish which was out with about fifteen feet of line. He landed the fish, which was nearly exhausted by its efforts to drown Willman, and regain his liberty. Only for the timely arrival of Wilson, Willman's name would have been McGinty. The fish weighed thirty-eight and a half pounds. The above may read a little fishy, but this scene actually happened an Chautauqua Lake en Sept. 12, 1894.

It is a curious fact not generally known, but it is nevertheless true, that in Newton County the ground about the spot where the body of the late G. W. Jones was found, after he was assassinated some six years ago, is perfectly barren and clean, and has been so ever since that terrible event occurred. The place in the woods of Newton, and the identical spot where the body lay, is marked with a stake. Around this stake for a distance of from eight to twelve feet no grass or weeds have grown since that time. Neither has there been any accumulation of leaves or other trash upon it from its surrounding trees, although all on the ground about is covered with hem. In fact, the ground on which the body lay when found is as clean as if swept with a broom, and is as barren of grass and weeds as the middle of a public street. An Invincible Combination.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 19.-A letter ha been received from a reliable source in Armenia by an American citizen here containing the statement, which is corroborated by other leters and advices received by Greeks in this city whose families reside in the district referred to. Seeki Pasha has arrived at Harpoot with Seeki Pasha has arrived at Harpoot with a large force and anounces his determina-tion to collect from the Christians of the province the taxes for three years. Business transactions are entirely suspended, all stores and shops being closed for thir-teen days. The Christian population is in a state of great excitement and an out-break is feared at any time. The inhabi-tants of the village of Farash, situated on River of Zahanta, Cicilia, were attacked by a band of Circassians and the slaughter by a band of Circassians and the slaughter of Armenians was begun, when the Greeks of the neighboring village of Karkaeny hastened to their assistance. Some 200 children were saved from the massacre and the Circassians were put to flight. Turkish troops numbering 8,000 were stationed at all the principal passes. The whole region is in a state of terror."

The night he arrived at home the house was surrounded by Turkish soldiers, who dragged him from the house almost naked and put him in jail with murderers. He was kept there for two days and then taken to Sassoun in irons, being compelled to walk most of the way, while he was lashed several times. From Sassoun he was taken to Constantinople on a Turkish steamer. Although carefully guarded on the steamer, he managed to communicate with some Armenians, who appealed to the American Legation and on the interference of the legation he was released. On being released he demanded the sum of Turkish money which had been taken from him and redress for the punishment he had suffered. The Turkish Government investigated, but the authorities at Tokai denied they had taken the prisoner's money. He says when he was arrested he informed his captors that he was an American citizen and was told that that was the reason he was imprisoned. He appealed to the American Minister and Consul Jewett investigated, finding the facts substantially as reported by Manasian. The latter is now on his way to this country and on his arrival will at once visit Washington and lay before the Government evidence in support of his statement.

> Albert Lincoln, a 20-year-old bellboy, who was employed at the Grand Avenue Hotel for the past three months, about 6 o'clock Friday evening compelled Mrs. Matthew V. Hoppel, an elderly guest of the same hostelry, to hand over $70 cash at the point of a revolver. The robbery was committed in Mrs. Hoppel's room on the second floor, and young Lincoln, after receiving the money, let himself down to the street on the fire escape and was captured an hour later at the Union Station, whither he went with the intention of taking the first train out for Kansas City, Mo.

ROBBERY OF MRS. JAUARY'S TRUNK.

When brought before Chief Desmond at il a. m. Lincoin at first stated that he had robbed Mrs. Hoppel because he needed the money, and when questioned as to other thefts that he might have been implicated in he related to the police the facts in the robbery of Mrs. January's trunk.

"I was going to Kansas City to try and get a position as beliboy in some hotel there," he said, "and I was strapped. If I had any money of my own I would not have acted as I did. But being broke, and hearing beliboys talk about how they would coin money if they were working in my place, I guess I just took an idea into my head to make a big haul in one day and skip out at once from St. Louis. When I first came to St. Louis from Kansas City I was looking seedy and had no money. I was rooming with a beliboy named Pounds, who is now working in Kansas City, and he would not help me to get myself in shape to apply for a job. One day I just took some of his clothes, because he had a lot of them, and ewent out, leaving a note explaining that I would pay him back when I got some money. I was green as a beliboy, and after I got a job at the Southern Hotel I was discharged because I was inexperienced. Then I went to the Grand Avenue Hotel. I am an orphan and haven't got a relative living. My home is in Kansas City. I thought I would go back home, and to do so thought also I owed it to myself as well as Pounds to pay him for the clothes I took. This was one reason I took the chance of robbery. I intended to give Pounds $65, anyhow.

"The revolver with which I held up Mrs. Hoppel I did not buy for the purpose. I just took it because it was cheap, and I thought I would like to have one. People may think I did this dirty work because I have been reading dime novels and Bill Cook's doings, but this is not so. I simply thought I needed the money to go to Kansas City. I have no bad habits of any kind, and there is one thing I wigh to say, and that is that there was nobody implicated with me in the theft and robbery."

At noon no application for a warrant against Lincoin had been applied for.

BOWEN, Ill., Jan. 19 .- A rather novel procedure of a fugitive from justice a exhibited in the case of Milan procedure of a fugitive from justice is exhibited in the case of Milan Smith, who killed William Pettit at Hibernia, Ind, on Dec. 13 last, and for whose arrest there is now a reward. Smith came direct to this city after he killed Pettit, passing through St. Louis, where he remained several hours, and then crossing the river on a street car, took the Wabash train for Bowen, landing here on the 15th, two days after the killing. Officers and detectives have been hunting him ever since, and on two or three occasions they had the house in which Smith was concealed surrounded, but for some reason did not make the arrest. Smith would move for a few hours to some other place of hiding and then come back to his uncle's, J. B. Gant's, and there remain until he thought they were hot on his trail, when he would move again, at no time being out of Hancock County. Still he was not captured, and three days ago he took the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train at West Point for the Rocky Mountains. The strange feature about the case is that he claims to have acted in self-defedee, and says that he is not dodging around to evade a trial before a court, but fears that should he be captured and taken back to the scene of the crime, the surviving members of the Pettit gang will lynch him. HONOLULU, H. I., Jan. 11, 1826.
To Hon, W. Q. Gresham, Secretary of State, Washington.

At Waikaiki Beach, five miles from Executive Building, Jan. 6, uprising of Hawaiians reported; several hundred well supplied with arms and ammunition. Commanded by Capt. Nowlein and R. W. Wilcox. Hon. C. L. Carter, late commissioner, killed first night. Desultory fighting every day since, without further loss of life or property to Government. Three Royalists killed and fifty taken prisoners. Over fifty non-combatants, mostly whites, arrested, including three ex-Attorney-Generals and many prominent citizens. Martial law declared Jan. 7. No vessels allowed to leave. All other islands are reported quiet. Crisis thought to be over, but excitement still intense. President Dole expressed to me his gratification that no National ship had been to port during this disturbance. Arms reported to have been brought from Vancouver by Norm.

Soon after he reached the State Department for Secretary Herbert, and the two Cabinet officers engaged in close consultation for half an hour, relating to the advisability of sending a United States cruiser to the islands. Mr. Herbert stated that the Philadelphia was at Mare Island, California, and could start almost immediately, delaying orders to take a few fresh stores and a little extra coal aboard. She carries a compilment of nearly 400 officers and men. commanded by Capt. Colton, and could make the run of 2,080 miles to Honolulu in about six days. After consulting for some time the Secretaries came to the conclusion that nothing should be done towards sending a ship to Hawaii except by direction of the Fresident, so they went directly to the White House to learn the President's wishes in the matter. Before leaving the department, Secretary Herbert conferred with Admiral Beardslee should the President decide to send a ship to Hawaii.

There is a disposition on the part of the Administration officials to regard salling orders to Admiral Beardslee should the President decide to send a ship to Hawaii.

There is a disposition on the part of the Administration officials to regard the importance of the revolutionary movement as exagerated, and one prominent official declared that he saw no reason for apprehension, for it had not appeared from the reports that any American interests had been endangered by the uprising.

Some officers, however, who have been stationed at Honolulu, and who are familiar the character of the interior of the islands is such that even a small number of determined men might hold their own for many weeks against a much superior force, just as did Geronimo and his Apaches in the Bad Lands when opposed by a military force. They recall the fact that a few lepers managed to resist all of the troops that the Hawaiian Government could bring to bear against them for a long time, hiding securely in the fastnesses on the mountains when the pressure relaxed. These officers fear ly in the fastnesses on the mountains when the pressure relaxed. These officers fear that the bands of Wilcox and Nowlein will thus serve as focil to attract disaffected matters and gather strength. She has just returned from a cruise off the coast looking for two missing steamers, and while the Navy Yard authorities report that ten days' work is required on her machinery, this undoubtedly could be much abbreviated if necessary.

The Boston and Marion are ready to go in commission at a moment's notice, but owing to the refusal of Congress to provide for enough enlisted men to meet the absolute needs of the navy, there are no crews for them.

The Olympia will not be turned over to the Government until the 26th inst. and will be commissioned on Feb. 5, ready for a cruise.

The Ranger, Mohican and Alert, old low-powered ships, would scarcely be chosen for use in any emergency requiring speed, and the Monterey cannot carry coal sufficient for the cruise to Honoluiu.

PUSH THE PENDER BILL

The first step towards the proof the public by law from the stre traps was taken in the Co ast night by the introduction of the ferries bill compelling the use of fenders in grip and electric motor cars.

The proposed measure seems to em-race the best action which the Municial Assembly can take in this important tter. It provides for the use of ders or guards approved by the Board of Public Improvements, the selection of the kind of fender not falling properly thin the province of the Municipal As-ably. The Board of Public Improvements cannot mistake the intent of the law to require an adequate life-saving guard. The companies are given a rea-sonable time, until May 1, to comply with the law and a penalty of $100 for each offense after that time is provided.

This bill should be passed by both branches of the Municipal Assembly without delay. It deals with a question of life and limb. Every day's postponement endangers the safety of citizens from death-dealing street cars. Warnings and appeals and demonstrations of the value of fenders have proved unavailing to move the callous officials of street car corporations. The only hope of protection lies in a stringent law.

The introduction of the bill does not end the work of the people. That public sen-timent has been aroused to a high pitch there is no doubt. But this sentiment must be given forceful expression. The members of the Municipal Assembly must be made to feel that the people de-mand immediate action of the right kind. Let every citizen make it a duty to see that the fender petitions are filled. Push the fender bill.

remarkable case is that of Juro Julius Clayton, imprisoned in Chicago by a Federal Judge because as a juror he could not conscientiously return a ver-dict for a railroad company whose engine had run over Miss Maria Cahill, causing the loss of both her legs.

In his charge the Judge said to the jury "You can under the law do nothing but find for the defendant. The Court charges you to find for the defendant. Then Julius Clayton, a gray-haired handsome member of the jury, arose and said slowly and distinctly: "Your honor I cannot render such a verdict." Then the foreman said: "I won't find for the defendant," and "Nor I," and "Nor I," came from other jurors. At this the Judge's wrath exploded, and he ordered the jury back, telling them to return such a verdict as they should see fit. After full consideration the jury resolved to return a verdict of $23,796.66 damages, but when they came into court and the first juryman called answered that a verdict had been found for the plaintiff, the Judge declared that they could not find that way-they would be all liable to contempt if they refused to obey the directions of the Court. Accordingly, protest, the jury-all but honest Juror Clayton-found a verdict for the railroad.

All that the Judge could say did not move Clayton from his conscientious resolve. He was sent to prison, and even his son could not persuade him to alter his determination.

Laymen will wonder, perhaps, why jury is neccessary if cases are to be decided wholly by a Judge. In this cas every juror was perfectly satisfied that justice demanded a verdict for the rl vet so that sort of a verdict went, there may as well have been no jury at all. Its own onscientious opinion counted for nothing against that of the Judge.

THE BRIBERY BILL.

Representative Julian's bribery bill ha one grave fault in that it unconditionally repeals all laws providing for the punment of members of the Legislature guilty of taking bribes. Should this bill ecome law the corrupt legislator would be secure from punishment and there would be no inducement for him to give information of bribery. On the contrary, being safe under any circumstances, re gard for his reputation would prompt corrupt member to keep silent.

The bill should provide that immunity from punishment shall be contingent upon giving information of the bribery and testifying against the bribers. Severe penalties should be prescribed for bribed legislators who fail to give information of the crime. It might be well also to add a fine to the penalty inflicted upon those who attempt bribery and make a part of the fine a reward for the in-

He abdicated June 22, 1815, n favor of the son who never reigned, in favor of the son who never reigned, and Bourbonism was re-established in the person of Louis XVIII. It was abolished in the person of his brother and successor, Charles X., July 28-30, 1830; and constitutional monarchy established in the person of Louis Philippe on Aug. 7 of same year. Feb. 24, 1848, he abdicates and retires to England, and the second Republic is proclaimed. It lasted until Dec. 2, 1852, and then made room for the second Empire in the person of for the second Empire in the person of Napoleon III. He and it went down and out in 1870, and the third Republic was born amid the throes of an almost fatal war. This Republic it is which is now passing through the severest ordeal of Such a num-ber and variety of changes in the form of government and its administrators since the revolution of 1789 placed power in the hands of the people, are not calculated to strengthen the confidence of the outside world in the ability of that people to govern themselves. Twenty-four years of republicanism ought to be long enough for France to ascertain whether she really wants it or not; but she does not seem to know-certainly does not seem to show.

Mr. Aldrich of Alabama, after charging fraud and intimidation in the Congressional election, is met by counter charges that he, himself, spent a corruption fund of $10,000, and that voters were bulldozed and bribed in his behalf. Perhaps some of the voters who were threatened with dismissal from employment if they should vote against him, were not thoroughly intimidated, or perhaps the other candidate intimidated so many voters that the most energetic of the Aldrich intimidators could not catch up. Fair elections would simplify matters very much in some Congressional Districts.

Those who have been sympathising with our overworked statesmen in Washington, feeling that currency and tariff problems were wearing them away, will be relieved to learn that they really have some opportunities for recreation. A recent letter says: "Public gampling has been suppressed in the District of Columbia, but in the recesses of palatial clubs, Capitol committee rooms, and fashionable residences the gentle admonition to 'ante and pass the buck,' or 'John, you are three chips shy,' can still be heard by those fortunate or unfortunate enough to gain admission."

That a citizen may be even more useful at home than abroad is made plain by the fact that James J. The thanks of bloycle-makers, as well as those of every bloycle crank, are due Mr. Van Alen. Probably there is not one of them who does not rejoice that Mr. Van Alen was not pushed off to Rome as a mere Government official.

FRANCE.

Louis Philippe, who probably knew his country and countrymen better than any man before or since, when the revolution of 1848 drove him into an exile from which he never returned, was asked by an Ehgilsh friend, "What will they do next in France?" The old King shook his head sadly and said, "All things are possible in France!"

These words are a key—if key they can be called—to French history for the past hundred and six years. "All things" have not only been "possible in France" aspace amailer than was aver intended for one human being, and as my normal health the first is already full and then trying to get into car that is already full and then trying to a space amailer than was aver intended for one human being, and as my normal seasons. WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A wide range of tariff debate is expected in the House of Representatives next week, at which time it is believed that Chairman Wilson and other tariff leaders of the minority will take occasion to state their views as to the adequacy of the revenue under the new tariff law.

Thus far the tariff discussion has been confined to the Senate, where Mr. Hill's proposed amendment to the income tax brought out several speeches urging the grave emergency arising from the lack of revenue under the new Jaw. This view is not shared by Mr. Wilson and his Ways and Means associates of the House. They feel Means associates of the House. They feel that there is much misapprehension as to the seriousness of the revenue condition. Mr. Wilson has told his associates on the Ways and Means Committee that the rev-enues requisite for the Government will un-doubtedly be sufficient when the new law is doubtedly be sufficient when the new law is fully in operation.

An opportunity to present the House view of the subject will be given when Mr. Wilson reports the bill taking off the one-tenth of a cent differential on sugar coming from foreign countries paying an export bounty. The committee has already authorized the chairman to make a favorable report. It is expected that the report will be presented early next week, and that the bill will be made up soon thereafter. Reports from the Ways and Means Committee are privileged, so that Mr. Wilson can secure recognition at any time.

The action of the Ways and Means Committee upon the bill to increase tax on beer, which has been referred to it, will depend largely upon Secretary Carlisle's opinion of the needs of the Treasury. Representative McMillan, chairman of the sub-committee, to whom the bill was referred, was at the House to-day after a few days absence on account of illness. He said he intended to see the Secretary of the Treasury soon and talk with him on the matter.

"The question whether taxes would, be placed upon any article aiready taxed," said Mr. McMillan, "depends partly upon Secretary Carlisle's view as to whether they will be increased on any article aiready taxed," said Mr. McMillan, "depends partly upon Secretary Carlisle's view as to whether the decrease in the revenues, which it is evident this year will witness, will reach a point where any additional steps for raising revenue are unnecessary."

ARIZONA AND NEW MEXICO. Pushing the Bill to Have the Territories

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The admission of New Mexico and Arizona to Statehood is expected to come before the Senate next week. These measures passed the House some months ago, but they have not advanced rapidy in the Senate. Aside from the interest the bills have to the two Territories, there is wide general interest in the effect their passbleycle crank, are due Mr. Van Alen. The Post-Dispatch agitation in favor of forcing the various street car lines to provide their cars with fenders or guards has borne fruit. The first definite step was taken at the meeting of the Council on Friday night, when Councilman Franklin Perriss introduced a bill making it compulsory for all electric or cable car lines to provide guards or fenders for their cars within a reasonable time or pay a fine. The following is a copy of the bill:

COUNCILMAN FERRISS BILL.

An ordinance to require grip and motor cars in use on street railways in the city of St. Louis to be equipped with fenders.

Be it ordained by the Municipal Assembly of the city of St. Louis as follows:

Sec. 1. All persons, associations or corporations owning or operating street railways in the city of St. Louis, either by cable or electricity, shall provide the front of their motor and grip cars, now of hereafter in use, with fenders or guards to scoop up any human being who may happen in the way of such a car. Such fenders or guards to be of such pattern and construction as shall be from time to time approved by the Board of Public Improvements. All such motor and grip cars shall be equipped with such fenders or guards shall be placed on all such cars in use hereafter.

Sec. 2. Any person, association, corporation or employe operating any motor or grip car in the city of St. Louis stater May 1, 1895, not equipped with a fender or guard approved by the Board of Public Improvements shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon coyriction thereof in the Police Court of the City of St. Louis, shall be much not less than $100 for each and every offense, and every day's violation thereof shall constitute a separate offense.

Sec. 3. It is hereby made the special duty of the police to enforce the provisions of the two preceding sections and to, this end each patrolinan shall report any violation thereof coming to his knowledge to his superior officer daily.

The bill was drawn up by Mr. Ferriss, Chairman of the Council Committee on Railroads, assisted by Mr. Arnstein and Mr. Gast, members of the committee, Severdi amendments may be made to the original draft, but as many members of the Council have expressed their unqualified approbation of the measure, there is but little doubt that it will soon become a law.

In speaking of the measure Mr. Ferriss In speaking of the measure Mr. Ferriss said: "I have long had this matter under contemplation, and the fact that I introduced the bill will speak more eloquently than words of my appreciation of the necessity for putting a stop to the useless sacrifice of human life and limb which is constantly going on. I believe the street railroad people will realize the necessity for action in this respect as much as I do."

Mr. Arnstein said: "In talking to Mr. Scullin some time ago he assured me that the street car lines were only waiting for an efficient device to appear before adopting it. I believe that there are efficient devices, and if there are not, why we will take the best there is. If we have the adoption of some safety device compulsory, and if it reduces the loss of life at all something will have been accomplished."

Mr. Paulus Gast: "You can say for me that any ordinance calculated to insure the greater safety of the public from the street car juggernaut will have my unqualified approval and support. I should consider myself derelict in my duty were it not so."

consider myself derelict in my duty were it not so."

S. P. Keyes: "There are regulations framed with a view to minimizing the danger of running street cars through the city, such as going slow when passing schools, ringing the bell, etc. These have proved inefficient. Steam engines are compelled to put cow-catchers in front, why not street railroads, where the danger is, in my mind, so much greater? The bill will have my support."

Other Councilmen when questioned were equally of the opinion that such a law was necessary and promised it their hearty support.

So Decides the Teachers Committee of the School Board.

The parents or guardinas of the 112 non-resident pupils who are now attending the public schools must pay the $20 tuition fee, or the pupils must leave the school. This was the decision of the Teachers Committee of the Board of Education at its meeting Friday evening, and this decision will doubth a be backed up by the entire board. The mat a has been carefully considered and action was taken in justice to the residents. There was a full meeting of the Teachers Committee and the subject was carefully and thoroughly discussed. A non-resident was declared to be one living outside the city limits, if not more than a foot, and the home of the parent or guardian was declared to be the home of the child.

At the meeting of the Building Committee, it was decided to dismiss Janitor Peters of the Peabody School for going to sleep on duty and allowing the fires to go out and his boilers to overflow. The matter of heating the halls in several schools was discussed, a motion was carried to fit up a private office for the architect and several bids for elevator inclosures were let.

McGrew Guards Reception.

The dancing party tendered the recently organized McGrew Guards at the West End Hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Gec. S. McGrew Fridey night, was a delightful Success. The hall was daintily decorated with flags and military bric-a-brac and was filled with the merry soldier boys and charmingly costumed ladles. Mrs. McGrew was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. Charless Cabanne and Mrs. Arthur H. Gale. A bugle sounded "assembly" when the dancing was to begin and intoned the "mess" call at the supper hour. Just before midnight the McGrew Guards Mandolin Club, comprising Messus. Carr. Barier, Moffat, Safford, Larimore and Lowe and the McGrew Quintetts, consisting of Messirs. Martin and Cabanne, tenors; Larimore, barytone, and Dillon and Eagon, bassos, entertained the assembly.

Be Held at Memphis.

The primes offered for an interstate drill in Memphis, Tenn., pext May have been discussed by St. Louis militiamen, and the question is which of the local companies will take part? The cash prizes amount to $20,000, and some enthusiasts think that local companies should gather them all in There are eleven contents, and the infantry, artillery, sonaves and military bands will have opportunities to win naurels. St. Louis has militiae companies, trained in every arm of the service, and hence the city can be represented in each content. Some of the Captains of lat Regiment companies and the Commander, Col. Batdorf, are opposed to prize drills, and this may reduce the number of entries from this city. It is pointed out that the statutes forbid companies of the National Guard of Missouri taking part in interstate drills. The Branch Guards tried for prizes at Little Rock, Ark, last year, by have of the Adjutant-General. It is likely that they will take part in the Memphis contests, because Capt. Sinciair is very much in favor of these tests of efficiency, and he is proud of the achievements of his company.

Capt. Holkamp is opposed to prize drills because he thinks they lower the regimental discipline. He spoke as a man who had experience in the ranks of the famous prize winning Tredway Riffes. Capt. N. G. Edwards was not so favor of the Branch Guards is enthusiastic over the chance afforded his company to win fresh laurels, and it is probable that he will enter the contest with permission of the Adjutant-General.

OVER THE MAYOR'S VETO.

City Council Decides That Eighteenth Street Shall Be Widened. Street Shall Be Widened.

At the meeting of the City Council Friday night the bill authorizing the widening of Eighteenth street from Clark avenue to Pine street was passed over the Mayor's veto by a vote of 8 to 1. Mr. Nagel was the principal supporter of the bill.

Mr. Vallat introduced a bill providing that the north half of Fairfax avenue, between Pendleton and Whittier, be vacated and the thoroughfare be established a uniform width of sixty feet by condemning a stoopthirty feet wide on the south side.

Mr. Arnstein introduced an ordinance for the opening of Westminster piace, between King's highway and Union boulevard; also an ordinance to create the office of Associate City Counselor.

An ordinance to create the office of Associate City Counselor.

An ordinance to set aside $35,000 to pay the salaries of Justices of the Peace, Clerks and Constables was reported from the House, but was opposed by Mr Nagel on the ground that a suit was now pending to test the constitutionality of the Devoy law. It was laid over for two weeks.

Ordinances to change the names of Morgan Ford road, Manchester road, Spalding avenue and Columbia Bottom road were pigeon-holed. The bond of the Grand avenue railroad for the use of the Lindell tracks was approved.

The new Bethlehem Lutheran Cathedral, Florissant avenue and Salisbury street, will probably not be completed for two weeks. The new edifice has the form of a cross and is 103x142 feet long. It is almost an exact reproduction of the one destroyed by fire Jan. 24, 1894, and which was at that by fire Jan. 24, 1894, and which was at that time only three months old. The frescess of the new cathedral are tasteful and beautiful. The organ cost over $4,000. The building and grounds represent an investment of nearly $100,000. It has a seating capacity of over 1,500.

The Bethlehem Church is the largest Lutheran congregation in the West. It includes 300 voting members, representing about 2,000 people, and supports a parochial school, attended daily by $60 children. Over 700 receive instructions in the Sunday-school.

ROBBED OF HIS MONEY.

Sad Fate of a Texan Who Shook Dice With Strange Men.

Thomas Jeffreys, a Texan, came to St. ouis on Thursday to take in the town. Louis on Thursday to take in the town. While parading the streets he met a stranger and they went around town together, winding up in a saloon at 312 South Fourteenth street. There had several drinks and started to shake dics. A third man broke into the game. After the trio had shaken several games the new comer took the box, threw out the dice and, drawing a "phony" roll of money, declared he would wager 1100 that nobody could name the spots on the bottom side of the dice. Jeffrey's friend hadn't enough money to take the bet, but Jeffreys, who had 350, borrowed from his first friend 350, and closed the bet. Of course, the bet was won, and the two left the saloon and failed to return. Jeffreys has reported his loss to the police and search is now being made for the pair of "fleecers."

Mrs. Johanna Kensier, 52 years old, was found dead in bed at her home, 1825 Geyer avenue. The condition of the body indicated that she had been dead several days. An inquest was held and a verdict that death was due to hemography was religious.

empsey's Friends Interfered in the Third Bound and the Decision Was Given to Byan-Creedon and Bernsu Will Meet To-Night-Breitenstein Dees to Sign for $1,800 a Year-Gen

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.-Pa have temporarily dismissed the disgraceful throw-down they received Friday night from their minds to speculate on the outcome of to-night's meeting between Griffo and Dixon. There is a difference between Demp-sey and Griffo. While thoroughly dissi-pated, Griffo is still a young man, and able to withstand the hardest blows which Dixon may be able to give him. These men met in Boston, and after a twenty-round contest, a draw was declared. The present bout is for only five rounds more than that. If Griffo acts upon the defensive, as he did in Boston, the five additional rounds will not make a bit of difference. It could be for fifty, or indefinitely. But it is said that Griffo will take the offensive. In that case, things will be different. If Griffo forces the fighting, Dixon will have a good chance to best the Australian. At the same time no one believes that he will do so. It is safe o say that Griffo will protect himself, as the always has done, and laugh at Dixon's efforts to get at him. A good referee, however, will weigh all this, and give his decision in accordance. If Dixon does all the landing and most of the landing, he should be entitled to the decision. However, a draw" would be better business policy, and uch may result. "draw" would be better business policy, and such may result.

The Dempsey-Ryan flasco will doubtless affect the atendance and, if there should be an unsatisfactory ending to to-night's battle, it may lead to the closing of the Seaside Athletic Club.

Dixon is the favorite in the betting, but Griffo's supporters are not backward.

Dempsey's weight was announced to be 142 pounds. Ryan tipped the beam at 145 pounds. The bout was to be fifteen rounds, at catch weights. Dempsey was fat, and had evidently not trained hard. Ryan, on the other hand, was in fine shape.

The interference of the speciators goes to show that the public does not approve of a contest when it becomes brutal or one-sided. The betting was 2 to 1 in Ryan's favor.

sided. The betting was 2 to 1 in Ryan's favor.

Dempsey will probably retire, as it is evident that he is out of it.

Just thirteen years ago he fought Harry Force in an open lot back of, and within a stone's throw of, the scene of Friday night's mill; but, before Jack could claim a victory, the police appeared on the scene and stopped the fight. One year later, Jack fought and conquered Billy Dacey, who, at that time, was a star performer in the ring. This fight took place in the kitchen of a hotel that stands only a short distance from the same spot.

VALUABLE BROOD MARES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 19.—The most valuable importation of brood mares ever brought to California has arrived at the Rancho Del Paso breeding farm.

the Rancho Del Paso breeding farm.

There were ten in the car, eight of English breeding. Geo. R. Easton, the famous auctioneer, came across the continent with the consignment of thoroughbreds. The breeding of several of the future matrons at Rancho Del Paso is ultra fashionable and they are to be mated to Sir Modred, Salvator, Midlothian and other celebrated stalilons at the big ranch. California is likely to produce many another Dr. Hasbrouck, Sir Walter or Walter or Walter in the near future.

One of the aristocratically bred mares of the consignment is Spirit of the Times, by Rosicrucian or the The Rake, dam lady Balmer. This mare is in foal to imp. Order, sou of Ben D'Or, the sire of Ormonde. Another mare is What Not by Chippendale, dam by Wenlock, the sire of Isinglass and Islington. A third mare is Lady Cardigan, in foal to Imp. Order. There is also a bay mare by Halbran, dam Moonbeam. Halbran is a full brother to Gallard, the sire of Vigor, who is now racing at the Bay District track. Merry Lassie, an English mare by Merry-with, dam Bird Catcher. The American mares are Queen's Taste, by Rotherhill, in foal to Cavaller, a son of Prince Charlie, the sire of Salvator, and a bay mare by Blue Eyes, dam Dilemma.

Charley Hueston, the well-known St. Louis jockey, who rode for Fred Foster last year, Charley Hueston, the well-known St. Louis jockey, who rode for Fred Foster last year, has received three offers for the coming season. Foster is anxious to have him again, while Charley Boots of California and Scoggan Brothers of Louisville are also after the first call on his services. Boots races in the colors of the Elimwood Farm, and became prominent in 1893 as the owner of the mauch-touted Peter the Great. The stallion Imp. Brutus stands at Elimwood Farm, and Boots will race a string of his get this season. The stable has entered liberally in the two-year-old stakes at the Chicago tracks. Charlie Thorpe rode for the Scoggan stable last year, but he has signed with the Flieschmans for this season, and Mr. Scoggan wants Hueston to take his place. However, Hueston and Fred Foster are on friendly terms, and it is probable that, if the owner of Dr. Rice really wants Charlie this year, he will get him. Jockay Hueston is a graduate of South Side Park, having first attracted attention by his work in the saddle at that track two years ago. He expects to ride at about 100 pounds during the coming season.

The fact that Garfield Park was inside the city limits, and the local tracks, Harlem and Hawthorne, are outside of these bounds, makes no difference from a legal point of view, as the suit was brought and the decision reached upon the statue which prohibits gambling.

Over $800,000 in thirteen consecutive years of racing is a handsome sum for any owner to place to his credit, and that is the amount which Racing Form declares was earned by Ed Corrigan's horses since 1882. Last season the Corrigan colors were flashed before the starters 42t times, and with the following results: First, 125: seconds, 85; thirds, 71; unplaced, 143. Money won, $105,701.

The racing season for the Corrigan string extended from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, for the horses opened and closed the season in California. The other racing of the season extended South and East, covering a number of important racing meetings. During the year eight purchases were added to the stable: Lee Lake 43,000, Handsome and Ducat $10,000 each, Senator Irby, Zenobla, Col. Clay, Watterson and Prof. 8., the last three being trained for jumpers. In all the stake money not one of the horses earned over $20,000, and only three over $10,000—an unusually equal division. Vassal led with $19,167, Handsome $15,895 and Joe Murphy $10,128. Longfellow sired thirteen of the forty-two starters, Isaac Murphy and Harry O'Fallon three each and Deceiver two.

With the announcement of the entries to the Garden City handicap, made public yesterday by the Chicago Fair Grounds Association, will come the query on all sides: "What is the matter with Henry of Navarre?" The Garden City handicap is the richest all-aged stake to be contested for this year, and yet Hyron McClelland has failed to name his star performer. He has nominated two others of his string—Halma and Joe Mack—so that it cannot be from any distribution to enter in the stake. A MINIATURE SANDOW.

The development of Matthes is due to persistent and systematic exercise with the dumbbells during a period of years, and is an illustration of what can be accomplished in that direction. When a boy he was thin and pale-faced, and people thought he had but a short least of life. He is now all years of age, with a prospect of a long, neathful life. He is of German parentage, which may explain the natural love, or institut, for exercise.

Von der Ahe's Offer of $1,800 Does Not Suit the Great Pitcher.

Theodore Brietenstein, the Browns' great south-paw twirier, has received an offer of $1,800 from President Von der Ahe for the coming season, but he says that it will not do, and that he has informed the Browns' president to that effect. For the past two seasons Brietenstein has classed with the best pitchers in the League in everything but salary. His value to the club is incalculable. Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Pittsburg have made large cash offers for Brietenstein's release, and each of these clubs has given Theodore to understand how much nicer they will treat him in a salary way than Von der Ahe if they can buly get him away from St. Louis. The desmand for him has, naturally, taught Brietenstein his true value, and he says that he will not sign with St. Louis for the coming season until he gets satisfactory pay for the work expected of him. Manager Buckenberger and Brietenstein have talked the matter over, and it is probable that there will be an adjustment of the question to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The ships came on until they were just outside the range of the big cannon. There they halted, the Union Jack of England flaring from the topmast of every one of them. Bob could plainly see the officers in gold lace on their decks. Some of them were examining the fortifications through their glasses.

"Mighty little they'll see from the middle of the 'riven out 'there," 'thought Bob. "They'll not find out that the army has gone until they open fire on the camp and receive no shots in return."

Suppose they should find out the army was gone? suddenly occurred to Bob. How much would it be worth to Cornwallis down in Virginia, now unconscious that his formidable foe was coming? Ships and another Eritish army from New York to help him! He might then become too powerful for Washington and Rochambeau! The whole campaign would be spoiled and there might never be another such chance!

Then another thought came to Bob that made his chest expand and his face light up. If he had put what he was thinking into words then it would have run like this. "Perhaps Providence left me behind for a purpose, after all. I may have greater work to do than I would have had with the army. I may save the campaign yet. Now's the greatest chance of your life, Bob."

He took a look at his six big cannon, which had been left loaded and primed. Then he peep out at the ships. There were three frigates and three sloops. The officers on the decks were still staring through their glasses at the cliffs.

Presently men began to launch a boat from the nearest ship. Six sailors and an officer got into the boat. A little white flag was hoisted in the stern and then the sailors began to row vigorously toward the camp.

"Well, I wonder what that means!" thought Bob. The boat came within 20.

"Til just see what they're up to," said Bob, continuing his conversation with himself. "Perhaps they've found out the army has gone and have come to take possession."

Promises have already been secured from a number of well-known Christian workers to take part in the programme. The hospitable citizens of Columbia are making arrangements to entertain all accredited delegates.

Experience of a Woman From Pacific, Mo., in St. Louis.

A Whole Day Lost on a Mission Which Was Accomplished in a Few Hours— Crowd at Union Depot Compelled to

WOULD BE A BOON.

Now, if there were only trains leaving at 3:30 o'clock, what a boon it would be to these people. An hour or two hours' wait when one is tired out is no small job. Then, too, they are burdened with the thought, most of them, that they will not get home until 8 or 9 o'clock in the evening; for, mind, the majority of the people that come to the station so early are people who have come from some distance. They are not the commuters and near-by suburbanites who stay at their places of business until the last minute before train time. They are simply country people who have come in to shop and are stuck—yes, that's the word—stuck in town until late in the afternoon so that one train can do the work of two. A reporter for the Post-Dispatch watched the crowd for an hour or more yesterday afternoon from 3:30 o'clock. When he arrived at the station the seats in the midway were filled. But the people continued to come, and there was no train out till 4:30. He noticed the ladies in particular. They showed they were country women and did not know that up in the ladies' private room there were rockers and easy chairs where they might rest comfortably, and no one told them. A goodly number of them had small children with them and the children were tired and cross. Many of them did not know just the hour their train did leave, and as soon as they arrived would ask an officer.

"Oh, dear!" said one little woman, with her arms full of bundles and a tired little boy at her side. "Have I got to wait here wall that time? I sn't there any way I can go to Pacific until 5:25? I thought there was a train out on one of the roads. Are you sure?"

"Yes, ma'am, sure," was the reply.

"Yes, ma'am, sure," was the reply.

was a train out on one of the roads. Are you sure?"

"Yes, ma'am, sure," was the reply.

To the reporter she said she lived several miles out of Pacific and that she never had thought to ask what time she left St. Louis. She said she could hear trains at her home going along during the day and never once thought they were all freights.

"I declare," she said, "I never will come to town again. It's harder than working all day."

day."

The reporter talked with several people who were waiting about. One was a farmer who lived out near Greenville, Ili. He said he left home about 5 o'clock to catch a train which passed Greenville at a few minutes after 6 in the morning.

"I got here," he continued, "long about the Interment.

Brief funeral services over the remains of the late Horace W. Hibbard. General Freight Agent of the Vandalia, will be held at the Southern Hotel at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. Dr. John Gierlow, prelate of Ascalon Commandery, K. T., and Eminent Commander Otto F. Stifel. The body will then be placed on board the private car of President McKeen of the Vandalia and with a special train over the Big Four will be taken to Shelbyville, Ill., for interment. Ascalon Commandery has charge of the body, and a special guard of honor has been continually on duty since Friday. The holding of the funeral services in the general parlor of the hotel, which is an unusual thing, is at the earnest request of Manager Lewis, who insists that the funeral shall be from the house which had been Col. Hibbard's home for the past fifteen years. The members of the St. Louis East-Bound Traffic Association have passed resolutions expressing their sorrow and sympathy and will attend the funeral in a body. President Booth of the Merchants' Exchange has appointed the following committees to take suitable action upon Col. Hibbard's death; Freight Traffic Manager Milton Knight of the Wabash, Vice President William Duncan of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, Assistant General Freight Agent F. A. FOLLOWING EXAMPLE. Mrs. Meriwether Points Out the Moral of Mr. Tekalsky's Speech.

To the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Tekalsky is the New York liquor dealers' leader and said to be their best thinker and talker. Through the papers Mr. Tekalsky presents a picture showing that the drink disease has spread from men to women, that the respectable mothers and daughters of New York are drunkards, just as the respectable husbands and sons are drunkards. Mr. Tekalsky says these respectable women do not get drunk in saloons as men do, but they do get drunk in fashionable dry goods shops, in drug shops, in candy shops; he says these shops have taken out dram-shop licenses on purpose to sell drams to respectable women who will not go in saloons to drink. This will not surprise the W. C. T. U., who know that any disease, moral or physical, which amilets large numbers of men is liable to extend to women. The W. C. T. U. who have studied the liquor question carefully, know that drunkenness is a disease produced by the poison of alcohol; nothing else will cause this especial disease. The disease has already set in when the man is in such a state as to crave drink. No perfectly healthy human system any more craves alcohol than it does arsenic or strychnine. ator Hill Suggests That "Profound legret" Would Be Better, but the fember From Maine Thought Indig-ation Too Weak—A Similar Resolu-ion Introduced in the House by Bou-bile of Maine.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The death Miss Mary Stevenson, daughter of the ce-President, was feelingly referred to in a prayer of the Chaplain of the Senate at a opening of the session to-day. Mr. Manderson (Rep.) of Nebraska pra-tied the credentials of John M. Thurston, coted United States Senator from Ne-naka for the term beginning March 4 vit.

a dramatic turn to the proceedings by offering a resolution expressing the profound indignation with which the Senate heard of the efforts to restore the deposed Queen to the throne of Hawaii and expressing it as the sense of the Senate that the United States Government should at once dispatch warships to the slands.

Senators gave close attention to the reading of the resolutions, and the galieries filled rapidly as word was passed that the Hawaiian question had been taken up. Mr. Frye asked that the resolution receive immediate consideration.

"I suggest," said Mr. Hill, "that the language 'profound indignation' is extreme, and it might be desirable to modify it by the words 'profound regret."

"On the contrary," declared Mr. Frye, with great earnestness, "I do not believe 'profound indignation' sufficiently expressive of my own feelings or the feelings of the American people."

"Nor the feelings of the Senator from New York," interjected Mr. Chandler, sarcastically.

Personal Enmity for Carter.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Fred W. Job, Havailan Consul here, in an interview to-day leclared that the killing of Carter in the ight at Honolulu was the result of the litter personal enmity of Wilcox, who is add to have been the leader of the Royllists. Wilcox, he said, had long been an nemy of Carter, and is a man without rinciple. "This man Wilcox ought to be hot as soon as he is taken," he said. "The Western law ought to apply to his case—thoot him first and then try him afterwards to find out if he were guilty or not."

Bicycle and Dictionary.

From the London Daily News.

Our Paris correspondence writes: The velocipeds is still ignored by the Academy. Nevertheless, quite a vocabulary is springing up around it, and great and numerous are the industries to which it has given rise. There is this excuse for the Academy that the word does not seem well fixed. It was next changed to "bicycle" and "bicyclette," became fater "le grand bi," and reverting toward the original word became veloc, to end at velo. "Velo" is now the steel horse. There are the velo-journal, velo-sport, velo-man, velo-woman, velo-tailor and velo-costume. The rule seems to be when velo enters into a composite word for the other half to be English. Thus we have velo-race, velo-prise, velo-match, velo-mania.

LEBANON, Ind., Jan. 19.—Last Monday Garrett Fall, son of a prominent farmer living six miles south of this city, was arrested and lodged in jell charged with shooting with intent to will Jacob Cason on the preceding night while the letter was returning from church with Miss Harriet Black. The men were rivals and it was generally thought Fall shot at Cason through jealows. Fall claimed he was being persecuted, and yesterday sent word to Miss Riack to call at the jail as he wanted to see her. She came in the morning, and was shown into the prisoner's cell. After an hour's interview she went to the Court-house and procured a marriage license. She then went to the office or Justice Hull, and with him she returned to the jail, and both were admitted to the prisoner's cell, where they were married in the presence of the Sheriff and family. After the exemony Mrs. Fall made arrangements with Judge Neal and her husband was released on his own recognizance.

WHEAT.
There was absolutely nothing in the marter except duliness this morning, and, after slight show of steadiness at the opening, rices began to drag lower. The decline was may ½c, as shorts came in and bought more freely at the lower rates, and late, the marter of the show of t ket toned up some, closing 750% between year terday.

The unexpectedly large clearances for week, which exceeded the preceding week by 1,000,000 bu and were over 200,000 bu larger than one year ago, did no more than impart a slight feeling of steadiness to this morning's markets, so intensely duli continued speculation and so apathetic local traders to the influence of a bullish term. Th

TRUE LOVE IN KENTUCKY.

Jersey Undertakers.

From the Philadelphia Record.

If the story of a well-known Camden physician is true, the competition between the undertakers over in that Jersey metropolis must be remarkably keen. "One day last week," says the doctor, "I was called upon to attend a baby who had some infantile complaint. The young parents were naturally alarmed about it, and insisted upon my seeing it twice a day. The child was in no danger, and when I received a summons to come a third time I was busy and postponed my visit for about an hour. When I arrived at the house I found an undertaker there, and the thought fashed over me that perhaps the child had grown worse and died during my absence. My fears proved groundless, however, and I found the little one doing very nicely. The undertaker lingered about for a while and then left. While bending over the child's crib I noticed a piece of pasteboard stuck in the bed cicthins, and, pulling it out. I found it was the undertaker's card. Just as I was leaving the house I met another man at the door, whom I recognized as a rival funeral director. A couple of blocks down the street I met still another undertaker, who seemed in a hurry. "Rello," I exclaimed, 'where are you going? 'Just up to Mr. Soandso's, he replied. 'I hear his baby isn't expected to live.'"

MILLS & AVERILL,

Changes in Rolling Stock,

said an old inhabitant of Indiana. "The boomotives of fifty years ago were much smaller than now and cost from $7,000 to 12,000. Now they cost about $8,000, but they are several times more powerful. The boal cars of to-day carry thirty toqs. The cars of that period carried only seven and shalf tons, and nine tons overloaded a car. The journals of that period were two and a half inches long and one and three-quarters in diameter. Now they are eight and one-half long and four and a quarter inches in diameter. There were no elevators in those days, and the wheat and flour were thipped in barrels. Wheat would be shipped fast in barrels and the same packages used in shipping the flour back to this country. This made the cooperage business good. The millers bought the barrels with the wheat for the purpose of packing the flour in them. I have known trains to wait for a woman to change her dress, but that is not the way things are done now."
